Training Marines To Land In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Friday an amphibious ship training in the Caribbean will put in at Guantanamo, Cuba, this weekend. About 1,450 Marines will go ashore for rest and recreation.

Such a training use of the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo is not unusual but ordinarily would draw no advance announcement.

Obviously it was announced in this instance because of Fidel Castro's repeated talk of a U.S. invasion.

A spokesman said that the rest and recreation shore leave at Guantanamo had been scheduled for several months.

The Navy issued a formal announcement on the weekend plans for four ships of Amphibious Squadron 10, which has been conducting training exercises in the Caribbean, with Marines of the 8th Marine Expeditionary Detachment aboard.

The plans include a visit of the assault ship Boxer, with the 1,450 Marines to Guantanamo.

A spokesman asked about the Marines aboard the Boxer, said that "this is not a reinforcement" of the comparatively small Marine garrison at the big U.S. Naval Base in southeastern Cuba.

He said the visit to Guantanamo was merely to provide the Marines with shore leave and recreation after several weeks aboard ship at sea.

The Marines will reboard the Boxer and leave Guantanamo Monday morning, the spokesman said.

The Marines disclosed about a week ago that the garrison of about 200 Marines at Guantanamo was being reinforced with a comparatively small number of additional personnel, understood to be slightly over 100 men.

The announcement on the weekend plans for ships of Squadron 10 said that: "Ships of Amphibious Squadron 10, which have been taking part in one of the regular series of amphibious training exercises in the Vieques-Roosevelt Roads area near Puerto Rico during most of October, will spend the weekend in Caribbean ports.

"The amphibious assault ship U.S.S. Boxer, flagship of the squadron commander, Capt. H. J. Kossler, will arrive at the U.S. Naval Base, Guantanamo Bay, Saturday morning.

Ol' Satchmo Casts Spell Over Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo, (AP)—The Congo capital laid aside the grimmer aspects of civil strife and insoluble politics Friday, and for a while it was up a lazy river, man.

But the background bristled with rifles at the ready. Many Congolese seemed bewildered by it all, while some clearly got the message.

The benign spell was cast in the falling tropical dusk when Louis Satchmo (Okaka Lokole) Armstrong brought visions of a different, happier world riding on his golden horn.

Okaka Lokole? That's what they immediately dubbed him here—Jungle Wizard, the man who can charm beasts.

The American trumpeter is on a goodwill tour of new African nations—some of them areas torn with indecision between East and West and some naturally neutral and willing to be wooed.

Here, in the most sorely beset and most seriously divided country, Satchmo quickly converted some thousands out of their turmoil into a semblance of a delighted army of jive cats.

They sat quietly as he played "Sleepy Time Down South" and "Back Home in Indiana."

With "When the Saints Go Marching In," things got moving. "Give those cats time. They'll learn," said Satch.

He was tired—Satch is 60—but he played hard for those "poor Congo cats."

Eichmann Trial

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector (AP)—Legal circles predict the police special bureau investigation of Adolf Eichmann will be completed in late December and his trial will open in early March on charges that he was a mass slayer of Jews under Hitler.

Kennedy Belittles Promises By GOP

By Geoffrey Gould

WITH KENNEDY IN PENNSYLVANIA (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy Friday night belittled Vice President Richard M. Nixon's announcement that he would visit Iron Curtain satellite countries if elected.

"I remember in 1952," Kennedy told a large crowd in Wilkes-Barre, "when they were running for president, they said they were going to liberate Eastern Europe. 'Eastern Europe does not need parades. They need a strong nation committed to freedom.'"

"If we fail, freedom fails; if we win, freedom wins," Kennedy added.

At another point Kennedy delivered his jibe: "I admit I'm a Democratic candidate very day and in every state of the union." This was aimed at Nixon's style of emphasizing the candidate rather than the party.

He also struck heavily at Nixon on unemployment.

"The Democrats gave you action," he said. "The Republicans gave you a lot of fancy arithmetic. And you can't put people to work with arithmetic."

Kennedy chose this issue as he started an intensive four-day drive for Pennsylvania's 32 electoral votes.

Tour Cool Region

He toured northeastern Pennsylvania, much beset by high unemployment and hit hard in the pocketbook by the financial ailments of the hard coal industry.

In a speech prepared for delivery Friday night in Scranton, Kennedy charged that since 1956 three Democratic bills to aid depressed areas were killed by Republicans in Congress or vetoed by President Eisenhower.

If he is elected Kennedy promised, and signed next year. He quoted Nixon as saying in a free economy you can't have full employment "and that unless the number of jobless tops 4.5 million it is not a significant issue in the minds of many people."

"Mr. Nixon says you can't have full employment," Kennedy said. "I say we must have full employment."

Starting his grinding 15-hour day in Bethlehem, Kennedy also charged the Republican administration has had two recessions in six years and that a third is starting.

In Scranton, he said "most economists now agree that another recession is under way. The vice president has denied this, of course, but the figures speak for themselves. The gross national product has fallen. Business is at a lower level than six months ago. Steel is at barely half capacity, home building at two-thirds. Unemployment has been at recession levels for months.

"I am sure that the people of Scranton and Pennsylvania do not want to trust their economic future to a political party which now threatens its third recession in just six years."

Aid Agreement

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — Fourteen Soviet technicians led by Georgi Shevkiakov and guided by four interpreters arrived in midweek for a two-month visit under a technical aid agreement.

DST Is Over, Sleep Extra Hour Tonight

THROUGH a mutual agreement "transacted" last April, you can sleep an hour later tonight.

Daylight Saving Time officially comes to a close tonight—or to be more specific, on the last Sunday of October.

Clocks should be turned BACK one hour in order to gain the hour advanced last April.

Daylight Saving Time means advancing the clock by one hour during the summer, usually around 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in April. But with the expiration of DST, the clock is now set back to recover the "lost" hour.

With a new movement started in 1953, the DST idea was extended from the last Sunday in September to the last Sunday in October.

Happy snoozing—but don't be late for church.

Trooper Is Shot By Sailor

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—A state trooper was shot Friday night by a motorist he had stopped for speeding on U.S. 11-35 about 20 miles north of Harrisburg.

A sailor was picked up an hour later near here and admitted the shooting and also said he had shot his wife in Port Deposit, Md. earlier today.

State police said the man gave his name as Donald R. Riefer, 24, a Navy signalman at the Bainbridge, Md., training station, and his home town as Rochester, N.Y.

Maryland state police checking out Riefer's report, said they found a woman's body at the address the sailor gave. They had no other details immediately.

The trooper, Stanley J. Jezewski, 22, Nanticoke, was reported in fair condition at Polyclinic Hospital in Harrisburg. He had been shot five times.

Riefer had his two young sons, aged 2 and 4 with him when he was stopped on Bald Eagle Mountain, just south of Williamsport, after a chase at speeds up to 90 miles an hour. Trooper Alexander Remchak, who arrested Riefer, said he also had a .25-caliber automatic pistol in the car.

Scene of the state policeman's shooting was about two miles south of Liverpool, Perry County.

Jezewski said the motorist rolled down his window and began shooting before he had a chance to speak to him. Jezewski made it to his own car as the motorist sped away and radioed for help. The trooper was shot twice in the chest, once in each arm and in the hand.

The shooting occurred about 7 p.m. (EDT). Riefer was picked up about 8:30 p.m. Williamsport is about 65 miles north of Liverpool.

State police said they did not believe Riefer had any connection with the incident in Carroll County, Md., Thursday night in which a Maryland state trooper was slain by a motorist and left handcuffed to a signpost. Carroll County is due south of Harrisburg, just across the Pennsylvania state line, some 40 miles.

Riefer told state police at the Montoursville barracks near Williamsport, where he was taken for further questioning, that he shot his wife seven times in their apartment at Port Deposit at 7 a.m. Friday.

Perry County authorities and other state police officials went to Montoursville to question Riefer further.

Good Morning!

Amazing as it is, the electric eye still cannot open the door to opportunity.

Shipments Of Arms To Cuba Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States asserted Friday that the Soviet bloc is sending new, substantial shipments of weapons and some military technicians to Cuba.

The State Department in a note to the 21 nations of the Organization of American States asked for a swift investigation by a six-member committee.

It said the Cuban government has sought to shield the shipments by fake charges against the United States of alleged plans to invade Cuba.

In reference to the arms shipments, the State Department said: "This has been carried out in an atmosphere of secrecy which may be judged by the strict security measures it (the Cuban government) has recently imposed in the area of Cuban ports and military installations.

"With the notorious assistance of extraterritorial powers, specifically those of the Soviet bloc, Cuba is expanding rapidly its capacity to give armed support to the spread of its revolution in other parts of the Americas."

A State Department spokesman said the new arms shipments run into "thousands of tons."

Soviet arms already shipped, the spokesman said, include light tanks, light artillery, automatic weapons, howitzers, and possibly Soviet MIG fighters.

There have been reports from Havana in the past few days of docks closed off by troops. Trucks with crates and weapons have been reported moving inland after cargoes have been unloaded from Soviet-bloc vessels.

The State Department, in appealing for an OAS investigation, said: "There is ample reason to believe that the Cuban government is using its continued false charges against the United States and other American governments to provide an ostensible justification for continuing arms procurement and, concomitantly, to divert attention from military preparations within Cuba."

HAVANA (AP) — Sources in Havana reported Friday night they have information indicating the Cuban government imported more than 22,000 tons of arms and munitions from behind the Iron Curtain between Aug. 1 and Oct. 27.

Aircraft was reported among the shipments but it is not known whether they were exclusively helicopters or included MIG jet fighters.

In describing the military buildup it said is going on in Cuba, the State Department said there is "grave questions as to the ultimate intentions of the Cuban government."

New hazards have been added to the tense situation, it said, "in view of the Soviet Union's bellicose and unwarranted threats of intervention in behalf of the Cuban government against the United States and Cuba's indicated willingness to accept this proffered Soviet assistance."

This was a reference to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threat to use rockets and other weapons, if needed, to help Cuba turn back any invasion by U.S. military forces.

Demos Set Modern Record In State Registrations

HARRISBURG (AP)—Registration reports from Pennsylvania's 67 counties Friday showed the Democratic Party has taken the lead over Republicans for the first time in modern history.

The GOP had been ahead by varying majorities every election since state registration records were started in 1928. It also is generally conceded that the Republicans had been the majority party in Pennsylvania since Abraham Lincoln carried the state 100 years ago.

The statewide tabulations Friday were made on the basis of official reports to the state elections bureau from 66 counties and an unofficial report from Lackawanna County.

The totals for the Nov. 8 election were Democrats 2,805,202 and Republicans 2,802,237—giving the Democratic party a majority of 2,965.

The registration reports showed a total of 5,582,131 Pennsylvanians eligible to vote in the election next month, including independents and other political parties.

Republicans had a majority of 993,567 eight years ago when President Eisenhower won the first of his two terms in the White House.

But the GOP margin dropped to 46,911 for the last presidential election in 1956 and was wiped out this year.

Candidate's Stand On Issues

Would you work for and support a bill authorizing the Legislature to call a constitutional convention or do you feel revision by amendment is practical?

Plane Bursts Into Flames

12 Die In Crash

FRENCHTOWN, Mont. (AP)—

A Northwest Airlines passenger plane crashed in flames into the pine-studded Cayuse Hills eight miles from this western Montana farming community Friday and police said all 12 aboard were killed.

Northwest headquarters at St. Paul, Minn., reported eight passengers and a crew of four were aboard the four-engine craft when it struck about 25 miles west of Missoula.

The DC4 plane, Flight 104, was eastbound from Spokane to Missoula where it was due to land at 11:50 a.m.

Robert E. Richardson, a railroad engineer who lives near the crash scene, said, "There is not enough left to be recognizable as a plane. It's all broken up and scattered over about one acre."

The craft burned, apparently before anyone could reach it.

Student pilot Ken Siler, who flew over the wreckage, said, "They flew right into the mountain."

Police and sheriff's officers said crowds hampered their work. The DC4 crashed just over the brow of a hill from cross-country U.S. Highway 10.

"It hit on a wooded hill," Richardson said, "then plowed ahead and scattered all over. No big pieces are left," he said. One twisted propeller blade was 50 yards from another.

"All I know is that it was a passenger plane and that every one of the passengers are burning up," Mrs. Robert Richardson, operator of the Nine-Mile Telephone Co., said.

She and her husband were driving by the scene.

After Missoula, the 50-passenger capacity plane was scheduled to stop at Helena, Butte, Bozeman and Billings in Montana, Jamestown and Fargo in North Dakota and terminate at Minneapolis.

It crashed 300-400 yards from the Nine-Mile Motel, which with a cafe, makes up the business life of the tiny community.

Neutrals Push For Accord

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—

Neutral nations brought mounting pressure on the United States and the Soviet Union Friday to agree at least on the ground rules that would permit early resumption of East-West negotiations on disarmament.

Chances for such agreement rested mainly on the outcome of private talks between the representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union. But Western diplomats were skeptical of any change in basic U.S. and Soviet positions.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth took the initiative in seeking a conference with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin outside of the debate now taking place in the General Assembly's Political Committee.

Wadsworth was reported ill and unable to see Zorin before the first of next week.

But pressed as to whether the Soviet bloc would carry out its threat to boycott the debate unless the West accepts Premier Khrushchev's proposals for a treaty on disarmament, Zorin answered: "We will have to wait and see."

Nixon Charges 'JFK' Betting On Recession

By Joe Hall

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Friday Sen. John F. Kennedy is betting on a recession but that the American people are going to show Nov. 8 they don't agree with him.

The Republican presidential nominee toured normally Republican downstate Illinois, accusing his opponent of making "the most disgraceful, irresponsible statement of the campaign on the nation's economic health."

The vice president is devoting two days largely to an all-out effort to capture Illinois' 27 vital electoral votes. His schedule brought him to Davenport Friday night for one Iowa speech.

The Democratic nominee said in Detroit Wednesday that the economy appeared to be slipping into a third recession in the last eight years.

But Nixon said the same newspapers which reported this statement also carried stories that new car sales were running at a record high in early October. This means, he declared in Danville, Ill., that "Americans who ought to know are not betting on recession. I say the American people have got a lot more sense than Sen. Kennedy."

At Mattoon, Ill., the vice president said "Sen. Kennedy is betting on recession but the American people are betting on prosperity."

Claims Kennedy Wrong

"Sen. Kennedy is wrong and the American people are right, and that's why they are going to defeat him Nov. 8."

Nixon said there is "no real reason, other than opposition gloom talk, why the economy should head into a recession."

Nixon's party left his special train at Carbondale, in Southern Illinois, after five days of touring through five of the key states in the election.

He went back to airplanes at Carbondale, a type of travel he will use for the remaining 10 days of the campaign.

Jack Brown, the train manager, said there were no difficulties as the special made its long overnight run from Muskegon, Mich., to Danville, Ill.

There had been a scare as train officials reported a piece of metal had been found on a rail near Fort Wayne, Ind., at a small bridge over which the Nixon special was to pass.

President Praises Nixon As Best Man

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Eisenhower said Friday night Vice President Richard Nixon should be his successor because this "most powerful" of nations needs a leader "who will think first, and then act wisely."

Quoting Sen. John F. Kennedy's campaign promise that he would be a president who would "act first and act fast," Eisenhower said: "I hear that one candidate says he will act first and act fast. America needs a man who will think first, and then act wisely."

"By all odds, Richard Nixon is the best qualified man to be the next president of the United States," Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower criticized Kennedy's assertions that American prestige is falling abroad and that the United States is "standing still" in domestic affairs.

"If the great things (that have been) done are 'standing still,' then I say America needs more of it," he continued.

He described Nixon as a man with "character, ability, responsibility, experience," who should be elected.

Possessed No Immunity U.S. Declares

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union demanded Friday that Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld obtain freedom for a Russian official of the United Nations held on U.S. spy charges.

Soviet Delegate Platon D. Morozov told the General Assembly's Legal Committee: "The Soviet Union demands the immediate release of this man."

He said the arrest of the U.N. official, Igor Yakovlevich Melekh, was a "dirty political provocation." He declared that Hammarskjöld "should take immediate steps to put an end to this act."

Earlier, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin told a reporter his delegation had protested to Hammarskjöld's office Thursday night Melekh's arrest, within hours after it took place.

Hammarskjöld said of this, "I have no comment." The Russians seemed to have picked up the spy case as another stick to beat him with in their campaign to force his resignation.

In Washington the State Department said it had told the Soviet Embassy that as a U.N. employee, Melekh "does not possess diplomatic immunity and that he therefore is not immune from arrest on the charges."

Press officer Lincoln White said the department so advised embassy Consul Officer Boris Belousov. He said the department also had told Belousov embassy officials could see Melekh "in accordance with accepted international practice."

This permission was granted even though the Soviet Union has prevented U.S. Moscow embassy officials from seeing two American fliers held after an RB47 photo-reconnaissance plane was shot down off the Soviet north coast July 1. White explained, "Two wrongs do not make a right."

Accordingly two Soviet officials, Yuzi Volinsky and Nikolai Rezhlenko, visited Melekh for 15 minutes around noon Friday at the Federal House of Detention in New York City.

Melekh, 47, has been in the U.S. Secretariat since 1955 and has been holding down a high-level $10,000-a-year job as chief of the Russian section of the language and meetings service of the Office of Conferences Services.

He and Willie Hirsch, 32, German medical illustrator, were arrested in their New York apartments Thursday night on charges they had conspired to get information on U.S. defenses to transmit to the Soviet Union.

The charges, made in indictments that a federal grand jury returned Thursday in Chicago, specified that the two had tried to obtain aerial photographs and maps of that city showing military installations. The FBI in New York City said Melekh had indicated in his contacts that these "were to be used for Soviet bombing purposes."

FBI men picked Melekh up Thursday night while a birthday party was in progress for his son Mikhail, 6, in his apartment on West 88th Street. His wife and daughter, Marina, 2, also live there.

Melekh and Hirsch were taken before U.S. Dist. Judge Lloyd McMahon and ordered held for $50,000 bail each with their hearing scheduled for Nov. 3. Each could be fined $25,000 and imprisoned for up to 25 years if convicted.

Today's Lesson Our Response To God

By Newman Campbell
In introducing the lesson for today, I quote from Peloubet's Select Notes, written by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith.

"Our lesson opens at the beginning of the Psalms, the great hymnal of ancient Israel and of the Christian church as well, and concludes with a portion of Paul's letter to the Romans, which in some ways, is the very foundation of Christian theology. Our justification in placing together portions of book separated in composition by about 1,000 years is in the fact that the God of the Psalms is the God and Father of the Lord Jesus Christ, and that godliness in the Old Testament have the same characteristics as godliness in the New Testament."

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in His law doth he meditate day and night."—Psalm 1:1-2. "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth the fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."—Psalm 1:2-3.

"The ungodly are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish."—Psalm 1:4-6.

In his preaching to the Romans St. Paul said, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God."—Romans 12:1. That does not mean "to go into spheres of great peril," but to dedicate our bodies in purity and righteousness to our Father God.

In our daily living, Paul said, "Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; an honour preferring one another."—Romans 12:9-10.

"Be of the same mind one toward another. Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate. Be not wise in your own conceits."—Romans 12:16.

Let us remember St. Paul's words when, in our age of what once would seem to be miracles, we are tempted to brag about our possessions or achievements.

Let us remember, too, to "be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."—Romans 12:21. Also, "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."—Romans 12:18.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

| Day | Book | Chapter | Verses |
|-----------|------------|---------|--------|
| Sunday | Isaiah | 7 | 13-16 |
| Monday | Proverbs | 6 | 20-22 |
| Tuesday | Galatians | 4 | 1-7 |
| Wednesday | Ephesians | 6 | 1-4 |

| Friday | Hebrews | 13 | 7-8 |
| Saturday | Psalms | 77 | 13-14 |

I call Bruce my combination angel-terror. Soon he will be four, and he is a fascinating mixture of mischief and goodness.

At bedtime, I always tiptoe into his room to be sure he's covered. Then it is that I am struck by the innocence of his face in sleep. Then it is that I realize how helpless is this small dynamo, who plunges with such boundless energy about our house and yard all day. Then it is that I am struck by the awesomeness of my responsibility.

I realize it is entirely up to me to see that Bruce learns right from wrong, to see that he grows into the sort of man who will be a credit to his family, his community, and his country. I must teach him to keep a steady heart and a level head, to resist the many temptations that will be strewn in his path, to hold honor and truth and integrity high.

When I think of my task, I send a small and special prayer to God to aid me. And I thank God for his Church on earth which, for years to come, will be helping me, again and again, in making my small mischief into a man.

Home Influence

A three-paragraph item has come to our desk which is exceedingly thought provoking. We reublish it herewith:

"In 'Who's Who' and the 'Hall of Fame' there are more sons and daughters than from men of the ministry than from men of any other single profession.

"If you are born the child of a minister, your chances at success are 25 times greater than if you are born a child of any other professional person.

"The only parents to surpass ministers in this respect are the missionaries."

We can't read these paragraphs without recognizing the tremendous importance of home influence. Nor can we dismiss parental responsibility as merely a matter of providing food, clothing and shelter for our sons and daughters.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Counties Were Dispensable

Connecticut has eliminated one of the middlemen, so to speak, in the traditional chain of government.

On Oct. 1, all counties in Connecticut were abolished. Most of their duties were taken over by the state, some by the cities and towns.

Connecticut only had eight counties anyway, and modern highways have put its state capital, Hartford, within two hours driving time of any city in the state.

This made it considerably easier for Connecticut to do without counties than it would Florida, for instance, where there are 67 counties spread over a much larger area.

However, Connecticut taxpayers will have about $50,400 in annual salaries paid to 24 county commissioners, not to mention expense accounts for travel to out of state conventions, et cetera.

If someone would care to figure what this would amount to for Florida's much more numerous county officials, who are probably better paid on the average and certainly as well traveled as any anywhere, it might come to a sum that would buy several miles of modern highways.

We are not seriously suggesting this is about to happen in Florida. It took Connecticut some 30 years to get it done, even with natural advantages in this respect that Florida doesn't have.

But it is interesting to note that somewhere people have decided they could do with a little less government—and counties have been found dispensable.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Cuban Revolution

Robert Paul Wolff is an instructor in Philosophy at Harvard University and as such is presumed to have some passing acquaintance with the ancient art of logic.

However, the instructor in Philosophy moves from Plato and Aristotle to comment on the politics of Cuba and permits himself a letter in the column of "The New Republic" which once counted among its editors the eminent Walter Lippmann but which has in recent years fallen upon hard times.

In his letter, Robert Paul Wolff says:

"... The revolution is not a tragedy to be 'contained' by tactical diplomacy; it is a wonderful victory for the Cuban people, to be cheered and aided in every possible way. We deserve to be hated by Castro, and it is a tribute to the Cubans that they have not turned on us more violently. Only after we have worked as hard for their welfare in the coming years as we worked for their misery in years past will we have a right to expect their good will."

Precisely why is the Castro Communist Revolution in Cuba to be "cheered and aided in every possible way"? What benefit is the Revolution to the people of the United States?

The Cubans have seized American property, molested American trade and turned the island over to the Communists, utilizing Czechoslovakian and Red Chinese experts to assist them. Should we be grateful for that? Perhaps we ought to compensate the Cubans for their kindness in killing several Americans!

Precisely why do "we," as Mr. Wolff says, deserve to be hated by Castro? Our State Department helped him get his job. Herbert Matthews of "The New York Times" created an American opinion favorable to Castro.

The deskman in the State Department, William Wieland, assisted Castro to achieve success. Our Ambassador to Cuba, Earl E. T. Smith, was discouraged from opposing Castro and was apparently instructed to be antagonistic to Batista.

Our Ambassador to Mexico, Robert Hill, got into trouble with the State Department for telling the truth about Castro. Why should not Fidel Castro be grateful for all this?

Instead he has followed his brother, Raul, into the Communist camp and at the United Nations acted and voted like a Communist stooge. Do we need to pay him for his performance at the Hotel Theresa in Harlem?

I do not know where Robert Paul Wolff, instructor in Philosophy, Harvard University, hails from and what he knows about the world in which he lives, but his adoration of the Castro Revolution causes one to wonder what a moral example he is to the young students who meet an instructor in Philosophy, I. where the truth is usually defined as the great minds of the human race say it.

But it does not take much of a great mind to discover that the United States is definitely imperiled by a Communist base 90 miles off the Florida coast and that that island could become a submarine and an air base to our danger and detriment.

Perhaps Wolff's logic does not project itself that far but the rest of us are deeply concerned by this danger which has now become a principal issue in the Presidential campaign.

Wolff's letter to "The New Republic" is, of course, a matter of no consequence. No matter who we elected, we shall do what we have to do in Cuba as elsewhere.

What is significant here is that our young people are being educated by many who are insensitive to the needs of the United States; who, for some reason, always put the United States second in any consideration of public questions.

Not knowing who Wolff is, except that he teaches philosophy at Harvard, I cannot say what his qualifications are for his demonstration of the United States.

Just above Wolff's letter was one by Enrique Noble, Associate Professor of Spanish, Goucher College. This man is a Cuban who is happy to discover that someone in the United States is not antagonistic to Castro and he believes that the American people are misinformed.

His is a noble sentiment of patriotism but what does he tell the young ladies of Goucher College about Communism in Cuba, the sequestration of American property, and the appearance of hundreds of Red advisers and experts who are now living in American-owned and Cuban-owned houses for which they have not paid?

The Allen-Scott Report

Baltic Fleet Urged

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Establishment of a powerful U. S. fleet in the Baltic Sea is being deliberated by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

If these military leaders approve this far-reaching proposal to set up a "Baltic Fleet" comprising all types of combat vessels, including nuclear-powered submarines armed with the Polaris intermediate range ballistic missile, it will then be considered by the National Security Council, the top policy agency headed by President Eisenhower personally.

Creation of such a powerful new force in a strategic area when Russia has great naval strength would give the U. S. five "striking fleets," as follows:

The first fleet safeguarding the West Coast; the Second Fleet with a similar mission in the North and South Atlantic; the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean; the Seventh Fleet in the Far East, particularly the Red Chinese-menaced Formosa Strait.

Admiral Arleigh Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, is vigorously advocating the prompt organization of a "Baltic Fleet."

He is making much of the fact this is strongly favored by West Germany.

By the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Burke is stressing three principal reasons for the urgent need of a "Baltic Fleet."

To prevent this crucial sea, on the northern flank of Eastern Europe, from becoming a "Soviet lake."

To actively bulwark the continuance of Norway and Denmark in the NATO alliance, which the Kremlin is doing its utmost to undermine.

To provide operational support in these strategic waters for nuclear submarines armed with Polaris missiles, which would give the West devastating deterrent striking power over key industrial and population centers in Western Russia.

The proposed "Baltic Fleet" would operate from U. S. bases on the Atlantic Coast, with Kiel, principal West German naval base, as a major supporting installation.

"Red Sea" — A decisive factor behind this momentous Navy plan is Russia's steadily increasing domination of the Baltic, in two ways:

One is building up of a great naval strength in this sea. The Soviet now has "on permanent station" in the Baltic—six cruisers, 70 destroyers, 150 submarines, several hundred torpedo boats, and equal number of mine sweepers, around 125 subchasers, and some 1,000 land-based naval aircraft.

The second is what has become known in NATO circles as the "Khrushchev doctrine." This is the Kremlin ruler's claim, in speeches and statements that have received little public attention, that the Baltic is a "Red sea" in which the Soviet has special prerogatives and privileges—primarily aimed at keeping out Western naval ships.

This so-called "Khrushchev doctrine" for the Baltic is flatly repudiated by U. S. and NATO authorities.

They firmly insist this sea is international and open to all vessels.

West Germany, whose great

Kiel naval base is on the Baltic, is particularly adamant in this stand.

It can now be reported this matter was fully discussed by Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss and Admiral Burke during his Kiel visit. Also significant in addition to the Chief of Naval Operations, the Kiel base was visited by the cruiser Macon, largest U. S. warship to enter the Baltic since World War II.

Another important naval trip to West Germany was the visit of the nuclear submarine Triton to Bremen on the Neighboring North Sea.

In the talks with Strauss, Burke favored West German plans to strengthen its naval forces with more and larger destroyers and submarines. The Bonn government wants to develop a fleet of 25 6,000-ton destroyers armed with missiles, and about the same number of submarines.

This plan will be considered by NATO defense and foreign ministers at their annual conference in Paris in mid-December. Their approval is deemed certain.

In the Groove — The Bormac-B anti-aircraft missile is finally in full production—according to a report the Air Force has given the House Armed Services Committee. This potent weapon is now credited with a range of 400 miles and a top elevation of 65,000 feet. The Air Force is really doing something about those caustic comments by Admiral Hyman Rickover, "father" of the nuclear submarines, and retired Major General John Medaris, that the armed services are top heavy with civilian personnel. The Air Force has assigned more than 100 inspectors to scan these rolls and to slash them to the bone "wherever possible." Air Force officials are claiming they will cut these civilian employees by 30 percent by January 1.

Issues In Campaign—II

Farm Output--Consumption

By Congressional Quarterly

Farm surpluses may well prove to be "the most difficult domestic issue confronting the American people in this campaign," as GOP Presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon put it recently.

At the heart of the surplus problem (which affects only that half of the nation's farmers who produce for the market) is the rapid growth of farm productivity, which has increased yields steadily since World War II.

Food consumption has not risen as rapidly. This has produced an imbalance: the farmer grows more than people are accustomed to buying. This surplus, when added to the market, makes the price drop. Democrats say even a very small surplus causes an extremely sharp price drop. Republicans do not believe the ratio is so great.

But in any case, new supplies added to the market beyond a certain point mean a falling profit margin for the farmer. The less efficient, operating on small profit margins already, are forced out of business.

To prevent this, the Government tries to cut back supplies—limitations on how much land may be planted to a certain crop. If a surplus nevertheless develops, the Government steps in and buys it up.

It does this in two ways. First, it enlarges the "normal" market by buying about $2 billion in food for foreign aid and welfare programs such as school lunch or CARE donations. Second, it stands ready to buy up the rest of the surplus, whatever it may be, at a fixed price. This has the effect of maintaining the general market level at that price. Food purchased in this way is simply put into a stockpile. At this cost about $2 billion a year—half of it for storage costs alone. Existing stockpiles at latest count include commodities that cost over $7 billion.

For both Kennedy and Nixon, the problem is clear: how to maintain farm income while eliminating the $2 billion annual expenditures for products that simply go into the stockpile. There is general agreement that the other $2 billion, spent for goods used for welfare and foreign aid, should continue to be spent.

Other Farm Problems—Surpluses and commercial farmer income are not the only farm problems. For the poorer commercial farmer, lack of capital and small scale of operation make for high production costs which reduce profit margins and increase vulnerability to drops in prices.

And for that "other half" of the farmers—the subsistence farmers who with their families constitute 7 or 8 million persons in a total farm population of 16 million persons—the problems are entirely different. For them the farm problem is how to get out of subsistence farming and into either commercial farming or some other occupation that will yield a decent living.

Nixon Proposals

Vice President Nixon's 1960 farm program appears to develop from the assumption that, left to itself, the farm market would balance according to the laws of supply and demand at prices that would yield producers a reasonable profit. If prices dropped below that level, less efficient producers would be forced out of farming and the others would cut back production. Both these events would cause scarcity, which in turn would make prices rise again. According to this view, supply and demand in a free market are automatically in balance, and the reason for the current imbalance is high Government price supports that have prevented prices from dropping when the normal operations of the market would have required them. The solution is to return to a free—or semi-free—market after a transition period in which production was gradually reduced to the level of demand.

A transition period is needed because surpluses every year are now so high that a sudden jump to near free market conditions would drop prices and profit margins sharply and wipe out most of the less efficient farmers—mainly the small, family farmer. In effect, the surplus would be eliminated at one gulp by cutting off the whole lower half of the commercial farmer group while the upper half continued to produce its usual amount. But the transition period would be used to make everyone cut back a little.

Nixon proposes to reach his destination as follows:

To eliminating existing surplus stockpiles in four years, he proposes: a sharp intensification of existing programs in which food is sold for foreign currencies, or is given away overseas (part of this effort would be creation of a United Nations food bank to help needy nations); expansion of existing reserves of surplus foods, now designated as defense "set-asides," into a "strategic food reserve" stored throughout the nation safe from radiation contamination; paying farmers who agree to "retire" cropland with surpluses-in-kind from existing stockpiles; and feeding of Government grain stocks to animals which would then be processed into cheap meats, poultry and dairy products for free distribution to welfare agencies.

Cost Estimated

This stepup of existing welfare and foreign aid donations would add about $500 million to $1 billion a year to the nation's current bill for farm programs, the Vice President's aides estimated. To do away with annual surpluses, the Vice President proposes a substantial but temporary increase of acres put into the soil bank, which is currently 28 million acres of about 380 million acres of cropland. Under the conservation reserve (authority for the existing program in expiring this year), farmers, under Nixon's plan, would retire from production, and devote to conservation purposes, fertile acres as well as marginal, at a "fair rental" to compensate for the production lost. Soil bank contracts would run from three to 10 years.

Also to reduce production, Nixon proposes a temporary cutback in acreage allotments of crops heavily in surplus. Acres thus cut back would have to go into the soil bank, with farmers receiving payment-in-kind (from Government surplus stocks) for last production.

Finally, price supports would be maintained high during the transition period.

At the end of the transition period, there would be no more surpluses; supply and demand would be in balance; and with no annual surpluses to depress market prices, a buoyant price level could be maintained. At this point demand might move up or down (Nixon thinks it will rise sharply with the growth of world population); if demand contracted, this might mean some contraction of the farmer group through a lowering of prices and elimination of less efficient producers. To avoid sudden swings of prices, although not to prevent long-term trends, Nixon would retain acreage allotments where necessary and price supports based on some percentage of the average market prices for several preceding years. These would cushion price changes but not prevent them.

For the second problem, to help commercial farmers combat rising costs, the Vice President promises a fight against inflation, support of consumer cooperatives and continuation and strengthening of various credit facilities and marketing services already available to farmers, like loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration, the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farm Credit Administration.

For the subsistence farmer, Nixon proposes vocational training in skills other than farming, better nonfarm job placement, development of light industry in rural areas and training in better farming methods.

Kennedy Program

For Democratic candidate John F. Kennedy, the basic problem of the commercial farmer is to raise—not only sustain—his income. Kennedy has pledged "full parity of income" for the commercial farmer, which means a rate of return on capital and labor equivalent to what the same resources could earn in non-farm fields. Kennedy aides have indicated this means a 30 percent increase in present net income for the average commercial farmer.

Whether the goal is merely to sustain or actually to raise farm income, the problem has the same basic outlines: raise consumption and prevent surpluses from reaching the market where they can shatter prices.

Like Nixon, Kennedy proposes a vast increase in foreign aid and welfare donations, in order to remove the existing surplus stockpile and also widen the permanent market for farm products. Thus, he would establish a "positive food and nutrition policy" for all Americans and channel more surpluses into the school lunch, relief and similar domestic programs to raise dietary standards. Through a stamp program and direct distributions, the unemployed, aged and handicapped would receive food. At the same time, the national security reserve would be enlarged, donations to overseas charities and disaster programs boosted contributions made to a UN food bank.

Kennedy lays particular stress on using U.S. food capacity to help foreign nations eliminate starvation, prevent economic conditions leading to political instability and, especially, reach the economic takeoff point, U.S. foods, in other words, would be used to sustain workers building up industrial capacities in underdeveloped nations.

Attack on Surpluses

Even after all these expansions of existing donation programs have been made, however, sufficient surpluses might still remain to depress farm prices. But Kennedy's aim, it must be noted, is not only to sustain farm prices but to raise them. To do this, he must cut back production—at least that portion of it that reaches the market—very sharply.

The chief device he would use for this purpose is what he calls "supply management"—that is, in effect quotas on how much can be sold in the market.

For a number of reasons, Kennedy rejects the argument that the market, if it operated freely, would automatically find a supply-demand equilibrium that would yield a reasonable return. Instead, he believes the actual condition of the market is one of chronic surpluses and depressed prices. Therefore, it is no use simply to cut back production and let the market operate. Instead, you must calculate the price at which you wish a commodity to sell in order to yield its producers a given return (full parity of income in this case); and then restrict the supply of that commodity that goes into the market to a level that will yield the price you wish.

This concept makes use of the fact that in the U. S., according to Kennedy, food prices dip about 20 percent if only 2 percent more supplies are added to the market; and jump about 20 percent if 2 percent of the supplies are taken off. A very slight cutback in the amount of food that can be marketed will be able to raise food prices substantially enough to guarantee the average farmer the 30 percent raise in net income he needs to give him full parity of income according to Kennedy's definition.

For some commodities, like wheat, a farmer would get a certificate, based on his past marketing history, permitting him to sell a certain proportion of the national sales quota. Acreage allotments might be used for other crops, retirement of acres into a soil conservation program for others; and in some cases it might be necessary to use direct payments to farmers or price supports (if demand unexpectedly fell below the quota) to sustain farmer income. But basically, management of market supply would be the answer. Kennedy aides say this would raise food prices some 15 percent (Nixon says 25 percent).

To strengthen the position of the low-income producer and help the subsistence farmer, Kennedy proposes more or less the same programs as Nixon. But he also calls in both cases for massive increases in credit to help the small commercial farmer and the subsistence farmer get larger farms and more modern machinery; and to develop small business in rural areas, and for broad expansion of credit for cooperatives, specific commitments absent from Nixon's program.

Inside You And Yours

Private Eyes

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

How would you like to dash out of bed each morning, put on your glasses and take a shower?

Carol does. She swears by contact lenses—her own little private eyes.

Ancient contact lenses looked like transparent bubbles, but today's streamlined contacts have grown so small that one of the greatest risks facing the owner is losing them.

In the eye, these miniature saucers never stretch beyond that gaily-colored circle surrounding the pupil. A thin film of tears holds them in place, the same way moist coasters stick to the bottom of drinking glasses. And like moist coasters, contact lenses can slide around within a small limited area.

Easy To Wear

Almost anyone can wear these between-the-lid eyeglasses. Of course you wouldn't want toddlers, whose clumsy hands can barely cope with building blocks, shoving tiny lenses into their eyes. And you'd prefer not to have contact lenses magnify the fearful inflammation of allergic and infected eyes.

Tight, thick eyelids might push the lenses around until they scrape and scratch the sensitive window in front of each pupil. Any such scratch or scrape must be exposed to air and not kept under glass.

Gets Numb

Sometimes this ultra-sensitive window is so numb you couldn't feel a fishhook scraping it. Contact lenses don't like to associate with these insensitive characters.

Except for dry, tearless eyes and a few oldsters who can't get used to them, almost any pupil can be taught to wear contact lenses.

They're not merely another cosmetic contribution like reshaped noses, dyed hair and mascaraed eye lashes. Benefits fall on either side of contact lenses. You look better—and often you see better, too.

Do Wonderers

These tiny plastic saucers move mountains that heavy old-fashioned horn rims couldn't even see? Senior citizens who have lost one natural lens to cataracts know that even the best-focusing glasses couldn't balance their world. One eye pictured everything as large as a post card; the other preferred postage stamp size.

Today, their double world has meshed together into three dimensions. Ordinary glasses now work fine, as long as a contact lens replaces the natural lens lost in the operating room.

Taggify And Sharpen

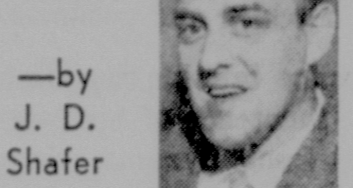

Contact lenses give better vision onto younger people, too. When contact saucers correct nearsighted vision, they magnify, as well as sharpen, everything seen.

Contact lenses can be fitted to oddly-shaped eyes and rotating vibrating pupils where old-fashioned spectacles simply blurred and logged sharp lines in crystal-clear air.

Contact your eye doctor if you want more information about these weather-proof eye-glasses.

Christmas Clubbers Hit $455,000

CHRISTMAS Club members have deposited an accumulation of $455,000 in the three Stroudsburg banks, a survey by The Daily Record disclosed yesterday.

The nearly half million dollars was deposited by 4,525 club members. Checks for this sum will shortly be mailed to these members by the three savings institutions.

Here is a list of banks surveyed, the number of depositors, and the total accumulation:

Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., Stroudsburg—$175,000 with 1,875 club members; East Stroudsburg National Bank, East Stroudsburg—$130,000 with 1,150 members; First Stroudsburg National Bank, Stroudsburg—$150,000 with 1,500 club depositors.

Higher Than 1959

The East Stroudsburg National Bank reported that its present figure is $6,000 more than that of 1959.

The average accumulation is slightly more than $100 per member. The amount, however, is slightly under the national average of $110 per member for the 1960 club.

The Christmas Club Corporation, founder of the Christmas plan in 1910, is celebrating its 50th anniversary. It reported that in the first few years of its growth, the average accumulation was only $18.50 per member as compared with the $110 national average.

After a survey of members in the 50 states, the corporation estimates that only about a third of the accumulation will go for Christmas spending.

The corporation feels the breakdown in the ways the money will be used are these:

Christmas purchases, 30 per cent; savings and investment for future use, 51 per cent; taxes, 10 per cent; year-end bills, 7 per cent; and miscellaneous, 2 per cent.

Leading states in the collection of Christmas club funds are New York, first, with 2,652,358 members and $287,862,572 in savings; Pennsylvania, second, with 1,658,556 members and savings of $191,740,239; New Jersey, third and California is fourth.

Scientist Film Set For Sherman

AMONG the most remarkable men of our century is Dr. Werner von Braun, famed rocket scientist whose life story is told in one of the most important films of our times, Charles H. Schneer's "I Am At The Stars." Curt Jurgens, Europe's most popular star, portrays the space scientist.

The show starts tomorrow at the Sherman Theatre, Stroudsburg, the film a Columbia release, also stars Victoria Shaw, Gia Scala, Herbert Lom and James Daly.

"I Am At The Stars" is said to be the first time a biographical film has ever been produced about a living man whose career is still in the ascendancy. Dr. von Braun, literally pioneered man's adventure into space and he was responsible for developing and launching Explorer I, America's first earth satellite. He also is perhaps the only man who has been a national hero in two different countries and the only man from an enemy country who became a national hero in the country to which he surrendered at war's end. Von Braun was responsible for the V-2 rockets which helped smash London in World War II. He now is an American citizen working to win the race for space.

Agency Accuses Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department accused columnist Drew Pearson yesterday of making a baseless innuendo against Vice President Richard M. Nixon and others.

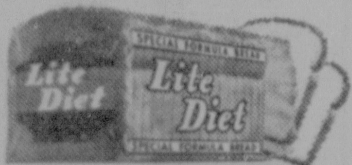

It said the columnist implied that the department had agreed to settle an antitrust suit against the Hughes Tool Co. because Hughes' lawyer had made a $205,000 loan to an enterprise headed by Nixon's brother.

Actually, the department said, the antitrust action was proposed and the suit was filed after the loan was made.

Homecoming Queen To Be Named Today

FOR the third year the Men's Executive Council of ESSC is sponsoring the activities in conjunction with the election of an East Stroudsburg Homecoming Queen and is planning the ceremonial which will take place on the college gridiron at half-time ceremonies during the East Stroudsburg - Bloomsburg grid battle today.

A spirited campus election has been held with Walt Snyder '61 of Riverside, Pa., president of the Men's Council, and Dean Eugene Martin, adviser to the group, in charge of the election and the ceremonial.

Student's Choice

Among the sixteen contestants chosen by various organizations as their candidates is a local girl, Miss Carole Hilyard, daughter of Mrs. Alice Hilyard, 165 Grand St., East Stroudsburg. Carole has been chosen as the representative of the Women's Day Student Association.

All news of the outcome of the election has been guarded carefully. About noon today the seven beauties who have polled the highest number of votes will be notified; at half-time, during the game, they will be taken by motorcade to the field for the ceremonial at which time the queen's name will be first revealed. Jim Gehman '61 of Adamstown, Pa., will serve as the master of ceremonies with Tom Barrow '62 of Ringtown, Pa., as the announcer. President Koehler will crown the Homecoming Queen and other assistants at the ceremonial will include Pete Henning, Barry Wray, John Dunleavy, and Harry Stiller.

Mitchell Predicts Republican Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell predicted here that Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon will win the presidential election by a wide margin.

"I used to think this election was going to be close, but I don't think so anymore," Mitchell said at a news conference. "It will be clear-cut victory for Nixon."

Mitchell, on a political swing through this section, said labor should vote for Nixon because the present Republican administration of Eisenhower "has provided more jobs at higher real wages than any other administration."

Mitchell said Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy has overlooked pertinent figures on employment.

The labor secretary said the nation's employment of 67.8 million in September was the highest on record for this month.

"We had 3.3 million unemployed, which is reasonably good for September and is a better picture than Kennedy talks about," said Mitchell. "The lowest unemployment during the Roosevelt administration, except for wartime, was 7.7 million in 1939. Even in 1942, during World War II, unemployment sometimes was close to 5 million."

Vote Trades Rejected, Bloom Says

HARRISBURG (AP) — Republican State Chairman George L. Bloom reported yesterday some Democrats have attempted to trade support for candidates of both parties, but were rejected by Republicans.

"Already reports are filtering in to me that some of his (Gov. Lawrence's) Democratic followers are trying to trade off the top of their ticket for lesser candidates," Bloom declared in a statement, adding: "Certainly, if we know this he must also be aware of the attempted deals and our rejection of them."

Bloom contended the governor "cannot deny" that some Democrats "who fear reprisal if their identities are revealed" feel that the Democratic organization "is holding back campaign funds from them."

In an earlier statement, Bloom said Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy cannot, or is unwilling, to adopt an "approach of frankness and honesty."

Independent Republicans FOR VAN D. YETTER wish to bring this Editorial Tribute To The Attention Of ALL VOTERS

Reprint From—The Daily Record—January 13, 1959

Tribute, Challenge

Important committee assignments have been drawn by Monroe County's two elected representatives in the General Assembly—State Sen. William Z. Scott and State Rep. Van D. Yetter Jr. Each of the men is particularly suited for the committee work to which he is assigned. And each is on the right side, politically, in his respective chamber of the divided Legislature.

We are fortunate, in view of the gigantic road-building program projected for the region radiating out of the Poconos, to have both men selected on the powerful highway committees of their separate chambers. Rep. Yetter, in fact, is the only "freshman" representative chosen on the House Highways Committee. This is actually Mr. Yetter's second term in the House, having been elected for the 1955-56 biennium.

Sen. Scott, a Republican who served in the House from 1947 to 1954 and in the Senate since 1955, was appointed chairman of the Judiciary General Committee and vice chairman of the Local Government Committee.

He is also a member of these committees: Education, Highways, Labor and Industry, Military Affairs and Aeronautics, Corporations, and Constitutional Changes and Federal Relations.

Rep. Yetter, in addition to his Highways appointment, is vice chairman of the Fisheries Committee, and a member of the Agriculture and Dairy Committee and the Game and Conservation Committee. A Democrat, he also was honored by being named to the House Committee which assigned the representatives to standing committees.

Monroe County can be proud of its two representatives for the fine assignments they drew. The honors which have come to them must, of course, serve as a challenge as well as a tribute to their knowledge and experience in the several fields.

The challenge is to apply their particular talents to the fullest possible advantage of this area and the entire Commonwealth. May each be motivated only by a desire to serve all of the people in every vote, every action he takes during his entire term in Harrisburg.

Just Between Us —

Like a squirrel hiding acorns, I hide away in the welter of items on my desk little tidbits which I think may come in handy during the long winter dearth of ideas. But anybody who knows my desk knows that it really isn't necessary to hide anything at any given time.

That's why I was so pleased to resurrect a note from Charles Bruch just after he had come back from London where he was the guest of Fraser Kerr who was appearing in "Watch It Sailor."

Seems before he left, he had talked with Ron Plimpton, light technician at the Pocono Playhouse who asked Charles to look up his family in London. Well he did and had a wonderful time including a tremendous lunch.

But what amused him was that he had to spend all his time there telling them about the Pocono Mountains. They had buckets of folders from local resorts and they wanted to know all about everything.

"Only when you're out of home territory do you realize how little you know about the area you were born in," confessed Charles although he could confirm Ron's note on a fall foliage scene "It does look just like that."

However the English have certain misconceptions about us too. Another afternoon at tea with the cast of the musical version of "Oliver Twist," one of the actors who has seen "Plain and Fancy" was entranced with Pennsylvania and its Dutch.

After a long question bout, he ended with "Now, Charles, how really do you find Pennsylvania as a county?"

Barrett Trick Or Treat For UNICEF On Sunday

Barrett—It's that time again.

All sorts, sizes and shapes will be knocking on doors or ringing door bells. The short goblins, gremlins and ghosts are the Trick-or-Treaters of other years, back with new costumes and empty paper bags.

In the course of the coming few evenings, there will be a different group on your doorstep. Barrett residents will be proud and happy to receive these Halloween Trick-or-Treaters on Sunday night. This is the evening, the members of Allied Youth at Barrett High, composed of representatives of the Junior and Senior classes will be knocking on doors in behalf of UNICEF. Those costumed economy-sized Trick-or-Treaters will be representing UNICEF and asking for donations of small change, not the usual edible goodies.

Since these ambassadors of good will are asking for others rather than themselves, it is an excellent commentary on the caliber of our youth.

UNICEF, in a seemingly small way, extends the hand of freedom and friendship to the children of other countries — regardless of race or creed by providing needed medical care.

Mrs. Reeve Price, as sponsor, is encouraging the Allied Youth membership under their president Sam Jones, Jr., in their efforts to be a "doing" organization. Just what they are doing, is to collect funds; for Mother and Child Welfare, for protection against disease through preventive medicine, and better nutrition through milk programs. Small change donations can do big things; 1c will buy 5 glasses of milk, 5c will buy enough penicillin to cure a child of crippling yaws, and 20c will cure a child of trachoma, while a $1 donation will cure a child of whithering leprosy.

Before you break open that piggy bank for your donation to the cause of better world health and relations; turn on the front light and count your blessings — then give out of the fullness of your heart.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"The Friendly Store" A.B. Wyckoff STROUBSBURG, PA.

This is the last day of the Biggest-Ever October Sale in the history of Wyckoff's, so hurry in and shop right up until 5:30 for merchandise that is timely . . . beautiful . . . and priced from 25% to 50% below regular price. This has been a tremendously successful sale, with ever so many persons buying not only merchandise for the family, but for holiday giving. When you shop, do so with a Shopping Card—it's simpler. Nothing to carry from one department to another but a card . . . and all your packages ready for you at one place when you are ready to pick them up. Shopping Cards are a joy all year around . . . but at Sale time and Christmas time they are the most wonderful convenience any customer could possibly enjoy.

If anyone needs the Infraray machines being sold in our cosmetics department, it's I. For the past week I've been in agony with my sacroiliac, or however you spell the blamed thing, and have been hobbling around as though I were a hundred and ten. My heating pad has been my most constant companion, and if aspirin tablets have calories I'll put on ten pounds!

All in all, I'm sure the gadget being sold in Pearl Walters department for only 9.95 would be an excellent buy. It is small, only seven or eight inches long, with a flat black knob at one end that applies heat and massage with a flick of the dial. The dial is marked for low and high heat, vibration, infra massage, and heat plus vibration, and the massager may be used on any part of the body—sinuses, thighs, shoulders, legs, arms, back of chest and small of back. Right now, the way I feel, I'm going to offer my services to Pearl . . . she can use me as a guinea pig for a demonstration.

Glittering as the tinsel on a Christmas tree is the gold nightgown with matching robe, by Artemis, priced at 25.00 a set, in our lingerie department. The fabric is nylon, woven with a twist that gives a truly metallic sheen. Over ivory nylon, the gown is lovely enough to wear as an evening gown. The styling is Grecian, with very narrow straps over the shoulder, matching slender tubings of fabric that wind around the fitted bodice and tie in three trim bows. On each shoulder is a tiny clip with iridescent stones, matching cuff link-type buttons on the puff sleeved, flowing robe. Both robe and gown are waltz length.

Lovely to be the pajamas and robe by Vanity Fair shown in the same display. The pajama top has a wide boat neckline . . . the coat is 3/4 sleeved and has a tuxedo front banded in embroidery to match the trim or the pajama legs. The colors are shocking pink with the same color in the embroidery, or, as shown, champagne with cocoa in the trim. Very rich.

For the kiddies, our cosmetics department offers bubble bath in Yogi Bear and Huckleberry Hound containers that can later be used as banks. These are 1.25. Boxes of individual bubble bath packets of the same type are 50c, and a large plastic sack of bubble bath with the characters printed on it along with cute sayings is 1.00. Delightful gifts . . . Our gift department is now carrying Buxton Jewel Cases made by the famous manufacturer of Buxton and Lady Buxton wallets. Of fine leather, prettily tooled, these are styled for quality, elegance, and real storage space. Some are chest type, with many handy drawers. See them—they're jewel boxes worth owning. Lady Buxtons are priced from 5.00 to 30.00. Bond Street boxes, some made with many drawers behind locked doors to hang on the wall, are priced from 2.98 to 34.50.

The afternoon sun quickly melted the mild fall—but now that the first flakes have arrived, can the real blizzards be far behind? (U.S. Army Photo by John Mietlicki)
